

Today, Rep. Braley announced that New Hartford, Iowa will receive over $1.2 million in disaster recovery.

Washington, DC - Today, Rep. Bruce Braley (D-Iowa) announced that the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) awarded $1,247,575 for disaster recovery efforts in New Hartford, Iowa. This funding will be used to acquire and remove one commercial structure and 25 residential properties that were damaged by the 2008 flooding.

"I'm glad that New Hartford is receiving the resources needed to continue rebuilding after last year's floods and tornadoes," Braley said. "During these tough economic times, rebuilding Iowa's communities will create and save jobs right here in Iowa. I'll continue working to ensure that Iowans receive the help they need to recover from last year's disasters."
